

Public Speaking Competition

Overview

Self-composure, confidence, and the ability to clearly articulate and communicate information are valuable skills for all educators. The Public Speaking Competition is designed to highlight students who demonstrate these qualities by combining thoughtful preparation and confident delivery into an interesting presentation on a current education topic.

Students participating in this competition will compose and deliver a speech of approximately 400 to 600 words (three to five minutes when spoken aloud) on the assigned topic. Contestants will deliver the presentation during a Zoom video session on the day of the virtual conference.

This is an individual competition. Only one student entry per chapter will be considered. Each chapter must select one student to represent them. Twelve (12) entries total will be accepted for this competition. Entries will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis.

Assigned Topic

As of 2020, nearly 60 percent of schools and 90 percent of high schools have a police officer present at least part-time. The number of officers in schools escalated after the Columbine school shooting in 1999 and millions of dollars have been spent to dedicate officers to school campuses. However, activists have fought for years against the presence of police in schools, arguing that police pose a larger threat to students, particularly students of color, than they do a source of protection. Additionally, activists argue that the millions being spent on police would be better allocated to guidance counselors, social workers, and other mental health support staff. *

What factors must be considered when deciding whether police should be placed in schools? How can schools best ensure the safety of their students, with or without police officers present?
