

Dr. Dionne Stephens

PROFESSOR OF PSYCHOLOGY

CO-AUTHOR "THE PSYCHOLOGY OF BLACK WOMANHOOD"

Are you interested in doctoral level training exploring...

Intimate Relationships and sexual scripting ?

Sexual health meaning construction across global contexts ?

Digital imagery and social medias' impact on health inequities?

The Applied Social & Cultural Psychology (ASCP) Doctoral Program offers the opportunity to work with Dr. Dionne Stephens, whose research examines the intersections of culture, identity, health, and well-being. As members of the Culture, Context, and Health (CCHI) Lab, doctoral students design and lead innovative research projects in a collaborative environment—applying psychological science to real-world problems.

Doctoral student packages include tuition support and a stipend throughout the degree, allowing students to focus on their research, professional development, and doctoral training.

GENERAL RESEARCH FOCI:

Identifying ways cultural beliefs, media, and social environments shape identity, relationships, and health behaviors using interdisciplinary research.

DEVELOP EXPERTISE IN:

Qualitative and mixed methods
Community Engaged Research
Global Health
Social Determinants of Health

If you are passionate about conducting impactful, culturally informed research with global relevance, Dr. Stephens and the CCHI Lab would be a good match. They will provide an exceptional environment to develop as a doctoral level scholar and researcher.

Scan here to learn more about

- ✓ Current CCHI doctoral students' research projects & publications
- ✓ Former CCHI doctoral students' career outcomes
- ✓ ASCP fully funded stipend and tuition package
- ✓ ASCP application requirements & deadlines
- ✓ Fall 2026 ASCP Virtual Info Session

Apply for the Fall 2027 cohort of the
APPLIED SOCIAL & CULTURAL PROGRAM
DOCTORAL RESEARCH PROGRAM

Department of Psychology · Florida International University, Miami FL

